PLEASE NOTE: This index covers Bourne Society Local History Records 1-45 [1962-2006] and Bourne Society Bulletins 1-202 [1956-2005] only. From Bulletin 202 the two publications were merged into the quarterly Local History Records incorporating The Bourne Society Bulletin, the first of which is numbered Local History Records 46, and which was published in February 2006.

Reference copies of Local History Records and The Bourne Society Bulletin are available at Croydon Local Studies Library (Katherine Street, Croydon), East Surrey Museum (Stafford Road, Caterham) and local libraries.

Enquiries may be made to The Bourne Society through the Society's website (www.bourne-society.org.uk), by telephone (answering machine service, 01883 349 287), or through the libraries and museum above.

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

In compiling this index account has been taken of the fact that relatively few people who consult it will be in possession of a full set of Records and Bulletins. Consequently, within a string of page references, there will be some duplication of the information accessed. Mostly, however, the page references will lead to items of information (often small) which it has not been possible before to usefully combine.

The index is arranged in word by word order (as opposed to letter by letter). Bulletin page numbers, denoted by B, follow those for the Records in a separate sequence. Page numbers in italic relate to illustrations. Those in bold type indicate major passages or whole articles devoted to a particular person or subject. To a lesser extent, bold type also indicates the most important (in terms of giving the fullest amount of information) page reference in a string of references.

Gender is male unless otherwise specified. Married women are almost invariably indexed under their married names, with cross references from their maiden names, where known, but in a very few instances it has seemed best to keep all page references concerning members of one family together, in which case the cross referencing is reversed.

Wherever possible a 'context' is provided in brackets after the name, in the form occupation/village/year(s). In some cases, with single page entries, the text when consulted may provide little more information than the context already given. In due course an index to the new quarterly Local History Records [Volume 46 onwards] will have to build on the current index and such entries may well be added to. The inclusion of a village name in the 'context' does not necessarily imply that the person lived there – he or she may have owned property in the village, but lived elsewhere. For sorting entries into order the 'context' element has been ignored.

Within a given surname the order is as follows: family heading [Edwards family] surname without forename, but with other additions [Edwards, Dr] surname with forename(s)/initials [Edwards, George B] Where surnames and forenames are identical for a number of people, village order is taken within this sequence; where they are identical within a village then the order is chronological. The names of firms, houses and roads can lead with the surname element. In such cases the names of firms immediately follow the sequence of surnames and are then followed by all other entries with the same first element in one separate sequence.

The index does not differentiate between Caterham Valley and Caterham on the Hill Upper Caterham, nor between Coulsdon and Old Coulsdon.

Book and painting titles, hotels, newspapers, public houses/inns and ships are in italic. The names of houses are not indicated in any particular way, but are self-evident.

THE BOURNE SOCIETY was formed in 1956 and takes its name from the intermittent streams that follow the lines of the A22 and A23 roads, meeting in Purley to flow northward into the River Wandle. The objects of the Society – England's largest local history society – are to extend the knowledge of local history in Caterham, Chaldon, Chelsham, Chipstead, Coulsdon, Farleigh, Godstone, Kenley, Purley, Sanderstead, Whyteleafe, Warlingham and Woldingham, and to ensure the preservation of records and objects of historical interest. The Society celebrates its Golden Jubilee in 2006.

The Society is able to help newcomers to satisfy their curiosity about the area, and to stimulate residents to search out further information. Through its publications, visits, speakers, meetings, placement of plaques, and archaeological work, the Society seeks to place the area in an historical perspective.

The Bourne Society is a registered charity, and as well as general work it has active special-interest groups in archaeology, industrial archaeology, photography, pub history and landscape history. Regular outings, meetings and events are arranged, and a wide range of publications produced, including this quarterly publication, which is sent free to members.

Membership is open to individuals, families, and organisations. The Society's Membership Secretary, Mrs J Emery, 118 Coulsdon Road, Coulsdon, Surrey, CR5 2LB, will be pleased to provide further details of membership and subscription rates.
